Belmont, Princess Troubetzkoy (Amelia Rives), Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Judge Ben Lindsey and Dr. C. H. Parkhurst. The Medical Review of Reviews, and its president, Frederick H. THE LIFE NOT PLEASANT

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 26.—The plea of Joseph D. Cornell, Sacramento attorney sentenced to eight years in prison for forgery, that jail life is breaking down his health and making him susceptible to tuberculosis, did not have sufficient weight with the third district appellate court to admit Cornell to bail pending the appeal of his case, the court today denying his application.

Prominent Ex-Students Will Deliver Short Speeches at Meeting

The local alumni of the University of Oregon are making plans for a reunion to organize a local alumni association at a banquet to be held at the Hotel Marion on the eve of the Oregon-Willamette game, Friday, October 29. It is expected that at least 50 old grads and former students will be present to lend their assistance to the association. Walter Winslow, president of the U. of O. Alumni association, will be toastmaster and Regent Ben W. Olect, ex-president of the alumni association, Charles W. Galloway, and Assistant State School Superintendent E. F. Carleton will be heard in short speeches.

Tom Williams, Carl Gabrielson, Clarence W. Walls and Charles Reynolds, former members of the U. of O. glee club will be heard in a few Oregon songs and the promoters are planning to secure Mrs. W. Carleton Smith for a vocal solo.

In addition to the organization of a local alumni association plans will be made for the home coming to be held at the University of Oregon, November 20, the date of the annual U. of O. A. C. game which will be played in Eugene this year. Efforts will be made to have each member of the local association wear a yellow chrysanthemum to the Willamette game next Saturday and to arouse a little of the latent college spirit that has been subordinated in many of the old grads in their rush for fame and fortune. The banquet will be called at 5:30 sharp in the grill room of the Marion hotel.

COUNTY COURTS MEET TO SETTLE BRIDGE AND FERRY PROBLEMS

Installation of Free Ferry or Repair of Bridge To Be Discussed

The county court of Polk county will meet the county court of Marion county and the city council bridge committee this afternoon at the court house with a number of the citizens of Salem interested in the proposition of a new steel bridge across the river at this city. The immediate topic of importance is the installation of a ferry or the possibility of repairs on the old steel bridge. The engineer who examined the bridge in 1912 reported that the bottom chord of the bridge could be repaired at that time for about $7,000 and many of the citizens of Salem are of the opinion that the bridge could be repaired at considerable less than the cost of a new bridge.

Assistant Engineer Sadler, in the bridge department of the state highway engineer, however, states that even if the old bridge were repaired it would be a poor good many after had as it would be an old bridge best when the repairs were completed and would be but a temporary relief at that. Mr. Sadler who made the examination of the bridge a few days ago says that when this bridge was built about 25 years ago it was of the lightest type constructed at that time and was not designed for heavy traffic. In those days there were no autos, no auto trucks, built to carry five or 10 ton loads and even the five ton horse drawn drays were scarce.

If the bridge were repaired, said Mr. Sadler, and put in the best possible shape, it would be necessary to limit the traffic to the amount for which the bridge was designed 25 years ago less about 25 per cent more on account of the deterioration of the steel. The fact that one of the lateral rods has snapped without warning recently indicates that the steel has crystallized to a certain extent which is not possible to estimate without a laboratory test. It would thus be necessary to limit the traffic further to accord with the deterioration of the steel.

The general public understand but little about the actual condition of the bridge as few have had the opportunity to study the conditions surrounding the structure and many erroneous ideas prevail. It will be the purpose of the meeting called this afternoon to hear the different opinions about the bridge and to have them explained by those who know and it is hoped that the absolute truth about the bridge may be brought to general knowledge.

The two county courts are endeavoring to work in the interests of the taxpayers and yet safeguard the traveling public and they are placed in a peculiar position and think that the only way to get to the bottom of the matter is to receive all of the light possible. The taxpayers will be cheerfully heard and it is expected that this afternoon's meeting will bring forth some actual results which will meet with the approval of the thinking public.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

F. J. Niclot filed a suit today in the circuit court of this county against Mary M. Payne. It is alleged that the parties to the suit entered into a verbal contract for the lease of 109 acres of land in this county in 1913 and the plaintiff claims that the defendant was to furnish Alsea clover seed enough to sow the tillable land. It is stated that the seed was not furnished and the plaintiff planted the farm to cereals and gave one-third of the crop to the owner. It is stated that October 19 an action of forcible entry and detainer was instituted in the court of Honorable F. Theodore B. Brentano, justice of the peace of the district of Champoux, and the plaintiff asks that the defendant be stopped from proceeding with the action. McNary and McNary and E. M. Page are attorneys for the plaintiff.

P. Moreau, of Woodburn, is attorney for the plaintiff.

Judge Kelly, of department number 1 of the circuit court, will open court in this city Saturday, October 28, to hear the case of Fred Schmid against Charles Schmid, an action to collect money alleged due on a promissory note.

WILLAMETTE NOTES

Samuel R. King was chosen by the junior class as manager of the junior class play for this year. Mr. King is the present manager of the Klossin Club and is well fitted to assume the responsibility which is attached to a proposition of the dimensions of the class play. He has already ordered the copies of the play and those who are to be in the cast will have their lines committed by the Christmas vacation, so that they may have sufficient time to study the interpretation of the parts. Professor Wallace MacMurray will direct the play. His dramatic ability has been demonstrated over and over again and this year's junior play is expected to be the greatest that will ever have been staged by Willamette students.

The resignation of Maxwell Ball as president of the senior class created a vacancy which was filled by the election of Thos. Yarnes. Mr. Ball's heavy work as editor of the Collegian was the reason for his resignation. Mr. Yarnes, the newly elected president, is a theologian but has been affiliated with the class ever since its organization.

Last evening at the six o'clock club there were about 15 Willamette students present to hear congressman Hawley's speech on "Rural Credits." After his introduction by Dean L. H. Van Winkle, as he was about to take the platform, the Willamette delegation rose to their feet and under the able leading of "Jack" Bartlett nine rousing cheers were given to the representative, who was a former president of Willamette university. His address, setting forth the needs of the nation, of men on the farms who have college educations has caused considerable discussion among the college men as to whether or not the farm compares favorably with business and the professional. Speeches of this nature are appreciated by the students, inasmuch as it gives matters that those upon which they have their minds fixed.

Following chapel this morning the Women's Willamette club met and elected Miss Lelia McCaddam song leader. The young ladies are planning to have the many Willamette songs learned and sing them at the biggest football game of the year in Salem Saturday, when the heavy U. of O. team will meet Willamette's last light team on the varsity field.

Arnie Walker, yell leader, is planning a mammoth rally for Friday evening. The freshmen are busy this week rounding up material for a mammoth bonfire and when the time for the rally comes, the football scene will be a scene of lively action for stunts galore will be pulled off. There will not be a street parade, all of the activities will be confined to the campus.

Mrs. Castner of Hood River, who is here to attend the Oregon State Federation of Women's clubs, spoke in chapel this morning on "Civic Interests." Her speech was short and to the point and was appreciated. The thought of her talk was her desire to interest students in realizing that they are soon to be required to assume civic responsibilities and that they should interest themselves in organizations that have for their fundamental interest, the development of civic pride.

Roland Pfaff, 15, now a professor in the Woodburn high school, is attending the teachers' institute here this week. He showed that he was still deeply interested in football, by coming out and watching the team go through their practice last night for a couple of hours.

"Peter," as he was known while in school was known and will be remembered as the man who dreamed that W. U. would win from Oregon by a 6 to 3 score in the game here, two years ago.

Street scenery looks quite as it did thirty or more years ago, there are so many youthful budding mustaches. Fashion is the great hair restorer this time.

WET AND DRY FIGHT GETS HOT IN OHIO

Country Generally Dry But Big Cities Wet—Wets Won by 85,000 Last Year

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Ohio is in the throes of the greatest fight in its history over the prohibition question. A week from today the state will vote on it.

For months the subject has been agitated and debated and the state convulsed. The greatest "dry" orators in the country, including former Secretary of State Bryan and former Congressman R. P. Hobson have voluntarily stamped the state.

Churces Haunt "vote Ohio dry" banners, saloon windows and bill boards point out the "evils of prohibition." Last year, the Buckeye state went wet by 85,000 because of the heavy majority for liquor in Cincinnati and Cleveland. Without these, however, the state would probably go dry. Prohibition workers are trying to roll up enough majority in the rural districts to overcome the majority of the cities.

While there are a few wet meetings, the saloonkeepers for the most part juggle a few dollars, wink slyly, pour a free libation—and suggest that this is the fourth attempt to make Ohio dry.

Gets 15 Years In Pen For Being Intoxicated

A sentence of 15 years in the Oregon state pen on a simple charge of being intoxicated is the longest on record but such was what happened to Dr. D. E. Ehmer this morning and the prisoner is now serving his long sentence. Ehmer was sent up from Baker county three years ago on a forgery charge and received a sentence of from two to 20 years in the pen. After serving two years as a model prisoner Ehmer was credited with five years time and was released last spring from the pen and secured a job in this city.

He was up in police court once before but Parole Officer Keller let him go on his promise to be good in the future. Last night Ehmer was picked up by the officers on a drunk charge and today he was taken back to the pen to serve out the remainder of his sentence.

Fifty Thousand Women Talking In New York

New York, Oct. 26.—Big mass meetings in practically every city of the empire state will mark this, the last week of women's campaign to swing New York into the votes for woman suffrage.

In addition to these sessions, 50,000 canvassers are engaged here and update in house to house visits, spreading the doctrine of equal suffrage, and counting in advance what the vote is likely to be.

The women intend to keep close watch on all balloting, lest there be, as they claim there was in New Jersey, fraudulent voting by repeaters. To prevent this, several thousand women watchers are being employed in detecting repeaters. All the women have been warned to challenge any voter who appears to be planning to drop a batch of votes against the cause.

Beginning at 10 o'clock this morning, street corner orators took up their positions, and were furnished with relief for 12 hours of straight speaking.
